As part of Homecoming '92,

Ten WKU alumni to enter Hall of Fame

Ten persons will be inducted as charter members of the Western Kentucky University Hall of Distinguished Alumni in an induction ceremony at 7 p.m. next Friday, Oct. 23 in the Ballroom of Garrett Conference Center. The ceremony will highlight Homecoming '92 activities for alumni.

Tickets are $35 and are available in the Office of Alumni Affairs. The evening includes dinner, recognition of the honorees and dancing with entertainment provided by the David Livingston Band.

"This inaugural class truly represents the 'Spirit of the Hill,'" says WKU President Thomas C. Meredith. "We are very proud of this group and we look forward to their return to the campus."

The 10 inductees were chosen from nearly 100 nominations received by the Office of Alumni Affairs. A screening committee narrowed the list before a final vote by the WKU Alumni Association Board of Directors. The Alumni Association will add five to the Hall each year.

Inductees include:

Dr. Tim Lee Carter — A native of Tompkinsville, Carter served in the U.S. Congress for 16 years, beginning in 1964. During his tenure, Carter received numerous awards for his support of legislation in the health field.

Carter received his bachelor's degree from Western in the early 1930s and his medical degree from the University of Tennessee. During World War II, he received the Combat Medical Badge and the Bronze Star.

Carter returned to Tompkinsville to practice medicine and was active in efforts to build a hospital and a three-doctor clinic there. He died in 1987.

Dr. Henry Hardin Cherry — A native of Warren County, Cherry became Western's first president when the state legislature created Western Kentucky State Normal School in 1906. He was president until his death in 1937.

Cherry's interest in higher education began when he attended the Southern Normal School in 1886. When the school was on the verge of closing, Cherry and his brother, Thomas Crittenden Cherry, purchased it and reorganized it as the Bowling Green Business College and Literary Institute.

Cherry became one of the leading educators in the state and his leadership helped Western develop into a recognized teacher training institution.

E.A. Diddle — The Hall of Distinguished Alumni is the latest in a long list of honors for Coach Diddle. He is already a member of the Naismith, Helms Foundation and Kentucky athletic halls of fame and was a member of the first class of the WKU Athletic Hall of Fame.

As basketball coach from 1922-64, Diddle accumulated the third most wins ever for a college basketball coach. His teams won 13 Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, 10 Ohio Valley Conference and eight Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association championships. Diddle also took eight teams to the National Invitation Tournament and three to the NCAA Tournament.

Gen. Russell E. Dougherty — The 1941 graduate was commander-in-chief of Strategic Air Command and director of U.S. Strategic Target Planning when he retired from the Air Force in 1977.

A native of Glasgow, Dougherty now lives in Arlington, Va., where he is an attorney with one of the nation's largest law firms. His many honors include the Outstanding Alumnus of Kentucky Award and the 1991 Henderson Award from the National Aviation Club.

Julian Goodman — The Glasgow native worked his way up from a news writer at NBC television in Washington in 1945 to chief executive officer of NBC in 1970 and chairman of the board in 1974. He has also been a past director of RCA and Gulf Oil Corp.

Although he retired in 1979, Goodman is still a member of the board of directors of Gannett Co. and McDonnell Douglas Corp.

Goodman received his bachelor's degree in English from Western. He has been the recipient of the Robert E. Sherwood Memorial, the Peabody Award, the Gold Medal of the International Radio-TV Society and the Paul White Award of Radio-TV Directors.

Dr. Martin A. Massengale — This 1952 Western graduate became president of the University of Nebraska in 1991. Before that, he served as interim president of the University of Nebraska and chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The native of Monticello specializes in agronomy, botany, plant physiology and crop ecology.

Dr. William Meacham — A 1936 Western graduate, Meacham is clinical professor of neurological surgery, emeritus, at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine in Nashville.

In addition to his distinguished career in neurosurgery, Meacham has served on several committees at Western, including the Development Steering Committee. He also delivered commencement addresses at Western in 1962 and 1985. He was honored in 1991 as an Outstanding Alumnus of Kentucky.

Frances Richards — Miss Richards was the first student editor of the College Heights Herald at Western in 1925, her senior year. She later became faculty adviser to the Herald, a position she held until she retired in 1964.

Miss Richards also taught English at Western for 39 years. She died in 1991 at the age of 97.

Dr. Kelly Thompson — Dr. Thompson became president of Western after 26 years as a member of the administrative staff.

The Lebanon native received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Western. He served as the university's president from 1955-69. His presidency was characterized by tremendous growth in student population which grew from 1,684 students in 1955 to 11,069 in 1969.

Working from a comprehensive master plan created under his leadership, 43 major construction projects were added to the Western campus during his presidency.

When he retired from the presidency, Dr. Thompson became president of the College Heights Foundation. In 1980 he stepped down as CHF president and became chairman of the CHF board.

Dr. Thompson and his wife, Sarah, reside in Bowling Green.

Billy Vaughn — Vaughn helped bring the national spotlight to Western when he and his fellow musicians in the group "Hilltoppers" appeared on the "Ed Sullivan Show" in the 1950s.

The Glasgow native received a dozen gold records and the first platinum record ever awarded for selling three million copies of "Sail Along Silvr'y Moon." The big-band leader died in 1991 at the age of 72.

A message from the President on wellness

The Raymond B. Preston Health and Activities Center provides many new opportunities for all of us to enjoy health and fitness promotional activities at Western. In conjunction with the opening of this facility, the University Wellness Committee and the Health-Toppers...Steppin' Out Health and Fitness Program for faculty and staff will be offering programs and activities designed to encourage all of us to adopt more positive health habits. Wellness, as defined by the American Hospital Association, is "the process of fostering awareness, influencing attitudes, and identifying alternatives, so that individuals can make informed choices and change their behaviors in order to achieve an optimal level of physical and mental health." Above all else, our health status depends on us, and this administration is strongly committed to supporting your health lifestyle habits.

The WKU Health-Toppers Steppin' Out Health and Fitness Program has the following objectives:

- *to provide information regarding health risks and how to control or neutralize those risks;
- *to encourage positive changes in employees' lifestyles which should result in improved health;
- *to offer activities and programs designed to support and encourage those positive changes and
- *to emphasize the on-going wellness program as an attractive employee benefit offered by the University.

We are all concerned about the continued rapid escalation in health insurance and care costs. From a benefits standpoint, we can no longer afford to view personal health status as a strictly private matter. Research has clearly shown that prevention is the key to long-lasting good health and our best chance for containing health care and insurance costs. However, the most important reason for adopting healthy lifestyle habits is to enhance how we feel, look and perform. Wellness is not simply about staying free from sickness, but of having the energy and capacity to enjoy life to the fullest.

The University Wellness committee is sponsoring a Health Screening for faculty and staff Nov. 2-6. You will receive further details about the event and how to pre-register shortly. The Health Screening will be free for Preston Center members and will cost $10 for non-members, which can be credited toward purchase of a membership during 1992-93.

I encourage all faculty and staff to take advantage of this important benefit.

About the dangers of alcohol

The APPLE Health Promotion Program of the WKU Student Health Service is coordinating National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week on campus next week, Oct. 19-22.

Also supported by campus and community agencies, the week is designed to promote alcohol use awareness among college students. This year will emphasize the relationship between alcohol, sex, driving and media impact.

The week's activities are free and are also faculty and staff, according to Carol Wethington, health educator.

Highlights of the week include presentations by Jeff Desjarlais, nationally-known speaker who will present two programs of Cocktails and Condoms at 3 and 7 p.m. Oct. 21 at Niteclass, and the FreeZone Cafe, Are Alcohol Ads too Sexy? Should They Be Censored?, a new program which is a roving cafe that provides an open microphone for persons to voice their opinions about a debatable health issue.

The cafe will be located in the DUC Food Court Oct. 20 at 1 p.m. For more information, call 5033.

The Office of University Relations regularly solicits news tips regarding faculty activities, achievements and awards. To submit news items for external media consideration, contact Bob Skipper (4295).

Planetarium features 'Autumn Skies'

Hardin Planetarium and the Department of Physics and Astronomy present Autumn Skies as the featured program through Nov. 5 at Hardin Planetarium.

The program will familiarize the audience with the fall constellations and their associated mythology. Various astronomical objects of interest visible in the autumn sky also will be included.

Show times are Sundays at 2:30 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m.

Doors open 15 minutes before show time, and no one is admitted after the lecture begins. Children under 12 need to be accompanied by an adult.

Planetarium shows are free. For more details, call 4044.

Extramural funding

Dr. Barry Brunson, Mathematics, $69,567 from the National Science Foundation for Calculus, Algebra and Mathematica: A Laboratory Approach, a project designed to create an environment for the first two years of college mathematics in which average students may learn essential concepts at a depth and to a degree of sophistication that rarely is attained even by superior students at this level. 7/15/92-12/31/94.

Dr. Douglas Harper, Physics and Astronomy, $15,000 from the National Science Foundation for Processes Leading to the Emission of Excited Atoms from Surfaces. The initial primary objective of this project will be the elucidation of mechanisms responsible for the emission of energetic, excited state atoms and molecules from surfaces due to electron beam bombardment. 5/1/92-4/30/93.

Dr. John Riley, Chemistry, $39,810 from the LECO Corporation for acquisition of a TGA-501 Macro Thermogravimetric Analyzer and a 350 Tsoparibol Calorimeter. 9/1/92-8/31/94.

David Wilkinson, Public Radio Service, $148,769 from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, radio community service grant. 10/1/92-9/30/94.

Due to incorrect information given to On Campus, a grant to Dr. Stephen House, Institute for Economic Development, from the U.S. Department of Commerce, was incorrectly listed as $124,215. The award was for $124,515.

Due to incomplete information given to On Campus, a $30,000 award from the National Research Council to support a Ford Foundation Fellowship for Dr. Cheryl Keyes of Modern Languages and Intercultural Studies at New York University should have credited Dr. Keyes as author of the proposal for that award, and not Dr. Livingston Alexander of Academic Affairs, who oversees such awards.

The Kentucky Museum's Textile for October is a Crossed I pattern quilt, made in about 1935 by Edith Neighbors of Morgantown, Ky. and donated by her daughter-in-law, Kathy Neighbors, in 1975.

The quilt is composed of alternating pieced and solid blocks of muted pastel fabrics. Set together, the blocks produce a geometric effect that is reinforced by simple rows of quilting. The use of mismatched fabrics in several of the pieced blocks may reflect its Depression-era origin.

Museum hours are 9:30 a.m.-4 Tuesday through Saturday and 1-4 p.m. Sundays.

Flu shots!

The Student Health Service will be administering flu vaccinations beginning today.

According to Beth Rush, shots will be given also Friday, Oct. 16, next Wednesday and Friday Oct. 21 and 23, and the following Wednesday and Friday, Oct. 28 and 30.

Hours are 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Fee is $10.

The Russians are coming!

This Saturday, Oct. 17 at WKU will mark the first time a European football team has ever played on a Division I College campus in the United States when WKU hosts the Russian Czars Football team in an exhibition game at L.T. Smith Stadium.

Kickoff time is 7 p.m. at Jimmy Feix Field.

"This is a unique opportunity for our players, our coaches and our fans," said Topper Head Coach Jack Harbaugh. "Football may be relatively new to the Russians, but we understand they have some great athletes. I'm sure it'll be a real test for our football team as we prepare for the last half of our 1992 schedule."

The Czars are coached by Houston native Eldon Cunningham, who played college football at McNeese State. He went to Russia last year and coached the Moscow Bears to the championship in the first-ever Super-Bowl in that country. He co-founded the Czars football club in January of this year.

In a letter to the citizens of Bowling Green, the WKU student body and faculty and administrators of WKU, Cunningham wrote:

"In a time when both American and Russian people reside in peace, it is only fitting that our two teams engage in friendly battle on the playing field. For this I say thank you to all those who are responsible. Thank you for making the world a better place for all of us...this exchange of culture will indeed enrich all of our lives and the lives of all who take part in this great game of American football as it has mine. Just by being associated with the good people at Western Kentucky University and the people of your great city."

The Czars have already played five games this season, winning three while coming up short twice. The roster is filled with athletes who have distinguished themselves on the international level in sports, such as soccer, track, rugby, wrestling and rowing.

The WKU-Russian game will cap off a very active day on campus. The annual Bowling Green 10K, one of the nation's top road races, will begin and end on the WKU campus Saturday morning, and the University is sponsoring its annual Parents and Family Weekend also.

"Our football game with Russia fits right into an exciting weekend on our campus," said WKU Athletics Director Lou Marciani.

"Parents and family activities, the big 10K race and a one-of-its-kind football game all adds up to a great day here at Western," he said, adding, "We want to thank our friends at the Bowling Green-Warren County Tourist Commission for their help in making this event a reality."

Making WKU a technology-rich campus

By Dana Fife

The new cable system many Western Kentucky University students are eagerly awaiting is just one of many technological advances Western is making this year.

Dr. Charles Anderson, assistant vice president for technology and telecommunications, said Western is excited about the changes taking place.

Western is in the first phase of installing an interactive television system to link its extended campuses with the Bowling Green campus, he said. Classes may now be taught in Bowling Green to students in Bowling Green, Owensboro and Glasgow simultaneously. Students at the other campuses can see and hear the teacher through a television monitor. The instructor and students in Bowling Green can also see and hear the Glasgow students.

Along with the interactive television, a dedicated data-line and toll-free telephone access system is being implemented which will allow the Glasgow campus access to Western's Student Information System, library files, budget information and other computing services. This system uses equipment that compresses video signals so they can be transmitted through standard T-1 data lines, Anderson said.

The extended campus in Owensboro has received interactive television instruction from Western since 1984. This system will be upgraded with the data and voice capabilities in January of 1993. Elizabethtown is scheduled to be connected in the fall of 1993, which will complete the networking of all of Western's extended campuses.

The satellite master antenna television system (SMATV), also residence life channel, a tutorial channel and Western's station, WKYU.

"We will be the only institution in the state to own and operate its cost-effectiveness, is the "backbone" for a future data system that will network computers on the entire campus. The high speed and capacity of the projected system would provide "state of the art data networking," Anderson said.

Western's campus-wide data network will eventually enable students to access library and other computing services from their own room. The system will work much like a computer modem, but faster and without tying up phone lines, he said.

Anderson said Western should have this data network on campus by the end of 1993. "We're trying to increase access to information and services," Anderson said.

Western is also networking the computers in the Wetherby Administration Building and Potter Hall on campus this fall. Through the internal building network, such services as electronic mail and office software will be available, Anderson said.

Western is creating a microcomputing support center on campus. The center will assist faculty and staff with microcomputing needs, including aid in selection, installation, applications and maintenance.

"We've declared technology a high priority at Western," Anderson said.

"As we implement these projects, we really become a technology rich campus," he said.

Dr. Charles Anderson, assistant vice president for technology and telecommunication, is overseeing a series of projects, including state-of-the-art cable television system, interactive television and computer integration, making WKU a technology-rich campus.

known as cable, is being installed throughout the residence halls on campus to provide educational and entertainment programming for residents. The system, which will be owned and operated by Western, is being installed by Institutional Network Communications, a Georgia-based cable TV supplier, as part of a $700,000 contract.

Networks carried in the cable package will include MTV, Country Music Television, CSPAN I, ESPN, CNN, Arts & Entertainment, BET, The Learning Channel, USA, WGN, WTBS, WWOR, a French network, a Spanish network and seven regional channels including CBS, NBC, ABC, Kentucky Educational Television and Fox affiliates. In addition, the system will carry a campus information channel, a own cable TV service for residence halls, which enables us to customize it to meet educational objectives, as well as students' programming preferences," Anderson said.

This project, which Anderson said is half completed, will involve the installation of three new satellite dishes on the roof of the academic complex. The two new residence halls have already been wired for cable, but the system will not be ready for viewers until next month.

"We now have fiber optics throughout most of this campus. We've been able to install them at a fraction of the usual cost by taking advantage of the construction in other current projects on campus," Anderson said.

The fiber optics, which were installed with the coaxial cable for
